Crash Injuries Fatal To Ex-BYU Student

FORMER BRIGHAM YOUNG University student Mua Sinapi died Monday afternoon of injuries received Monday morning in an automobile crash.

Sinapi was fatally injured shortly after midnight Monday when the car in which he was traveling into American Fork from the west on Highway 91 failed to negotiate a curve and left the road.

The auto went 111 feet off the road before striking a utility pole. The right side of the car was torn off.

The former student died of a compound fracture of the skull at 3:50 p.m. Monday, in American Fork Hospital.

ACCORDING to Boyd Adams of the American Fork Police Department, the wreck is believed to have been caused by excessive speed.

Sinapi's companions, not BYU students, were treated for minor injuries and released from the hospital Monday.

Sinapi was born March 1, 1924 in Tutuila, American Samoa. He entered BYU on a foreign scholarship after attending McPherson College in Kansas, and serving an enlistment with the United States Marine Corps.

HE WAS A versatile musician and could play any instrument. While at McPherson College he met Les Brown's touring band and joined it for awhile. He later managed his own band at BYU.

After leaving school last spring he went to work for the Utah Ice and Storage Plant in Provo. He was employed there in the maintenance department at the time of his death.

He is survived by four children in Tutuila, American Samoa; a sister, Mrs. Lupe Polo, in western Samoa, and a brother.

The entire studentbody is invited to attend this meeting according to Dick Nixon, president of the club.

Time and place of the meeting will be announced Wednesday.

Engineer Tests Slated

A pre-engineering ability test for all Engineering Science students will be given in the Social Hall Saturday.

All freshman students are expected to take this test which is scheduled at 8 a.m., 10 a.m. and 12:30 p.m. Those unable to attend the examination should notify Dean Harvey Fletcher of the College of Physical and Engineering Sciences, room 294 Eyring Science Center.

Burial Fund Plan For BYU Students Studied by Group

INVESTIGATION by a student committee of the possibilities of establishing a student memorial insurance fund at Brigham Young University has recently been completed.

Suggestion and financial backing of a fund was offered by Francis W. Kirkham, Salt Lake City insurance executive. The student committee, under the direction of Fred Lundberg was organized to investigate the merit of such a program.

PURPOSE of the fund would be to provide burial funds in case of the death of a student while in school.

According to Lundberg, the only two possible methods under consideration which had any merit were collecting fees at registration, in cooperation with the administration; or organization of an independent, legal, non-profit corporation of the studentbody with all funds being administered by this corporation.

AFTER CONSIDERING students needs and studying the two named plans of operation the committee announced its recommendation that such a program could not be put into operation at BYU.

Consideration and study of the fund program was also to be made by the administration. No word from the administration concerning the program has yet been announced.

Windstorms Cuts Power At BYU for 20 Minutes

Brigham Young University was without electric power for about 20 minutes Tuesday when a heavy wind blew tree branches on Provo City power lines.

According to a spokesman for the Provo City Power and Light Co., the power shortage was "spotty" and covered several sections of Provo during the day.

BYU campus was blacked out from 12:40 to 1 p.m.

Queen Election Review Discussion Anticipated

THE STATE OF THE UNION will be discussed by Brigham Young University studentbody president Monroe McKay, at Wednesday evening's Senate meeting.

President McKay is expected to report on major studentbody activities both past and forthcoming. Executive Council policies for the year will be another topic discussed.

The student leader will deliver his ideas on the role of student government—what it is, what it means and what students expect of it. He will also propose constitutional recommendations to the Senate, according to Don Jensen, executive assistant to the president.

IT IS BELIEVED that McKay will request a review of queens policy at BYU. The request will probably carry a recommendation that the number of queen elections be reduced.

McKay has requested representatives of all student organizations and all campus housing be on hand for the special senate meeting. He announced that he will discuss problems of student organizations. It is believed that problems in connection with student housing will also be brought out.

The senate meeting will be in 167 McKay Building at 4:10 p.m. Wednesday. The entire studentbody is invited and encouraged to attend this meet.

Soprano Opens Lyceum Season With Wednesday BYU Concert

Rosalind Nadell will open the Brigham Young University-Community Concert season Wednesday at 8:15 p.m. in the Smith Fieldhouse.

A leading mezzo-soprano of the San Francisco and New York operas, Miss Nadell is now appearing in the San Francisco opera. She received a release from her performance there to fill the Provo date.

"Let Me Wander, Not Unseen," by Handel; "Since From My Dear," and "Kind Fortune Smiles," by Purcell will be her opening numbers. A group of songs from Brahms, Liszt, Verdi and Strauss will follow.

"Popular Songs" by De Falla, "temps des lilas," by Chausson, "Mandoline," by Debussy, "Sure On This Shining Night" and "I Hear An Army" by Barber, and "Ox-tails" and "Rabbit At Top Speed" by Bernstein will be included on her program.

Miss Nadell has a varied background in opera, light opera, concert, radio, and television.

She played the role of Octavian in Rosenkavalier on a concert tour with Lotte Lehman on the West Coast and was acclaimed by critics and public for her presentation.

Students will be admitted on presentation of student activity cards.

Dozing Utah Giant Needs Awakening, Young Demos Told

"UTAH IS a sleeping giant," L. C. Romney, candidate for governor, told the Brigham Young University Young Democrats Monday night.

"Our great supply of natural resources and water is sufficient for industrialization," he said, "and Utah is ready for it."

The payroll of the common person must be levied, and industry has the power to do this, Romney commented. He said it would create new jobs and opportunities, and that living conditions in poor areas of Utah would be greatly affected by industrialization.

SEVERAL years ago Utah schools were rated highest in the nation, Romney pointed out. He said that now they have dropped in rating.

"The state must back its school system not criticize it," Romney explained. "It must be given adequate funds to operate effectively."

STATE Representative Oscar W. McConkie, who is seeking the state senatorial seat, finds his young age to be of little advantage within politics.

"This problem is one that I'll have to outgrow; however, our generation should have their voice in government," he told the BYU Young Democrats at the meeting.

IOC Court Justice List Announcement Seen Wednesday

Announcement of Inter Organization Council Justices is expected Wednesday according to Rodney Fye, IOC executive assistant.

List of new justices was to have been announced at a special IOC meeting Monday night but since the list was not prepared, the meeting was cancelled.

Applicants have been under consideration for three weeks.

Selection is based on the background of the applicants in IOC regulations, Brigham Young University procedures, and political and legal methods.

A new court system was drawn up and approved late last spring quarter but the court has not functioned at all since that time. No justices have worked under the new regulations and there have been no hearings or trials.

LESS FALDEROL, PLEASE

It took years, but bureaucracy has finally arrived in studentbody government.

In, we assume, an effort to create jobs for students in the studentbody government structure many new jobs have come into being for the first time this year.

Chief among these seems to be that of publicity director—from head publicity director down to third and fourth assistant publicity director.

Every organization on campus with a president or director has appointed a full publicity staff to include assembly publicity, lyceum publicity, and a multitude of other activities in which an organization might have a participating thumb.

Besides the creation of new jobs, the suspicion is growing that these publicity directors have been erected as buffers and bumpers whose sole purpose is to shield their leaders from the crude, pointed questions of inquiring Daily Universe reporters.

Net result of the new systems, which seem to have been put into effect from the Executive Council down to individual department clubs, is that news which should be coming from top level personnel is being funneled down—losing details and facts on the way—until there is little semblance to the original story which finally reaches the reporter.

This necessitates initiative by the reporter in seeking out the "wheel" of the first part and getting the data all over again.

Please, could there be more news and less publicity dispensed by these stalwart defenders of their leaders' peace and comfort?

Affected Affection

Recently a letter appeared in the Daily Universe stating that all men over twenty-five on this campus are badly in need of affection. Well, fellows, we want you to know that we understand exactly how you feel. Although your suffering is six years greater than ours, (since we're only 19) we at least have an inkling of the lonliness and starved - for - affection feeling that comes from being unwanted.

Our field of accomplishments is by no means narrow. We like to dance, cook, sew, play ping-pong, play tennis, swim, go tubing, wrestle (with our own rules) and etc., etc., etc., so you can see we're quite versatile.

We know we're not the type that would attract Elvis Presley, but we must have some good qualities, because we used to have more than four dates a week.

Last year was the exciting whirl of being sought-after freshman girls, but now that we're sophomores we're experiencing the disappointing feeling of being upperclasswomen.

Just because we're one class older, we don't want to crawl under a book every night, (unless we have male companionship)!!

Double Chagrin . . .

Dear Editor:

I am doubly chagrined at the reaction certain young Republicans have expressed toward Mr. Hardy's letter.

Personally I can vouch for his words, since I have been called a traitor by several persons. On this campus you do not have to walk around with a chip on your shoulder to be ridiculed for your political beliefs.

I am proud to be a Democrat and anyone who says letters such as mine are the result of publicity seeking or "evidence" that the Democratic party is running scared this year" is simply showing his own irrationalism.

All Fable . . .

Dear Editor:

The article in today's Daily Universe (October 22, 1956) by R. C. Hinkson, entitled "Mt. Timpanogos: Fable and Fact," interests me greatly, although I cannot say that it altogether pleases me. I take exception to the so-called "Indian" legend of Timpanogos. In the first place, the motif of a lover dying of a broken heart because of the demise of his beloved, is an altogether un-Indian theme.

It sounds like something out of Medieval Europe. Also, the principle of sacrifice was probably unknown to these simple hunters. Then, too, what possible justification can there be for the term Indian "princess"? There were no royal families, nor was there even a hereditary chieftainship.

In fact, it is doubtful if there were even chiefs, in the strict sense, before the coming of the whitemen.

Th personal names used in the "legend" are far-fetched. I do not believe that the name Utahna is of native origin. As for the "great God Timpanogos" I strongly doubt that any such deity was ever believed in by the Ute Indians. The name Timpanogos comes from the native name of the Provo River.

As for the "one massive bleeding heart which is now located within Timpanogos Cave," it is inconceivable that this could have been part of any original native legend. I understand that the cave was not discovered until years after the last Timpanogos Ute was moved to the Uintah Basin by order of President Abraham Lincoln.

Also, the apparent red color of the "bleeding heart," I have been assured by the government guide, is produced by electric lighting.

Mr. Hinkson entitled his article "Fable and Fact." I realize that the so-called "legend of Timpanogos" was not meant to qualify as fact, but I dislike having it referred to as "Indian legend." It is white man's legend, and I suspect that the author of it was none other than the great Eugene L. ("Timpanogos") Roberts, a fabulous character in his own right, having been a member of the Brigham Young Academy expedition of 1900 to Central and South America, and the originator of the famous annual Timpanogoi Hike, but no authority on Indian legends.

Demos Outstrip GOP In College Party Poll

MINNEAPOLIS (ACP)— When asked their party preference, U.S. college students gave the Democratic party a slight edge over the Republicans. Students considering themselves Independents showed up in a strong third place, indicating a than is usually found within the general public (as measured by various state and national opinion polls).

Associated Collegiate Press gathered collegiate opinion on this preference by sampling from a representative national cross-section of college students. The following question was asked:

DO YOU CONSIDER YOURSELF A REPUBLICAN, A DEMOCRAT, OR AN INDEPENDENT?

The results in percentages:

	Men	Women	Total
Republican ..	32	35	33
Democrat	38	45	40
Independent	25	18	23
Other	5	2	4

THE COMMENTS of students who consider themselves Republicans give strong indications that President Eisenhower is the single best reason for their preference. On junior at the College of Physicians & Surgeons (San Francisco) says simply: "I like Ike." However, a freshman attending Ohio University (Athens) feels that "The Republican party has better men to offer the nation than the other party."

A few students mention party principles, party platforms, etc. as the reasons for their choice.

A Yakima Valley Junior College (Yakima, Wash.) sopho more thinks ". . . this preser Republican party has good prin ciples and sticks mostly t them."

STUDENTS CHOOSING th Democratic party have mo consistent reasons for the choice, the vast majority them feel the Democratic par is best because it is for t "common man." Here the se eral typical comments: A junio at the Bernard Baruch School Business, City College of Ne York, feels that the "farmer an small businessman have thrive under Democratic administr tions." "The Democratic par best represents the people of o country" says a freshman co at the Rochester Institute Technology (Rochester, N.Y.).

Almost to the man, Indepe dents sampled echo the sen ments of a sophomore coed a tending Tyler Junior Colle (Tyler, Texas) who says: "I b lieve strongly in voting for t man, not the party."

A MISSISSIPPI Colle (Clinton, Miss). junior offe this explanation: "The nation parties cannot offer principl in general to choose betwee The issues are local and conte porary." And the opinion of real "independent" is that of senior at Juniata College (Hu tingdon, Pa.) who states: choose to follow my own opi ions. Therefore I, as an Indepe dent, can select rather than f low blindly."

Amerika Disappears In Russia After Half Hour on Newsstands

MOSCOW—(INS) — Fifteen thousand copies of the U. S. State Department's slick "Life"-sized magazine "Amerika" went on sale on Moscow newsstands at 10 o'clock Monday morning. They were all sold by 10:30.

The magazine, priced at five rubles ($1.25 at the official rate) was sold at 100 state-run newspaper kiosks in Moscow and in 33 other cities of the Soviet Union.

Although the Moscow stands received batches of 100 to 500 copies apiece they were all gone in a half hour.

AS THIS CORRESPONDENT was checking a newsstand across from the Bolshoi theater, a man in a slouch hat, carrying a briefcase, asked the news vendor: "Is Amerika on sale yet?"

"Yes," she repeated mechanically, "but they're all sold out."

Four years ago, just before the State Department discontinued publication of "Amerika" which had begun during the war, any Soviet citizen brave or foolhardy enough to buy one would whisk it home to read privately.

Monday, lucky purchasers shared their copies, reading them openly on the street.

NEXT TO THE kiosk opposite the Central Telegraph Office on Corky Street a shoeshine boy sat in a customer's chair. A cluster of bystanders peered over his shoulder as he turned the pages.

At first glance, "Amerika" buyers, depending on whether they were women or men, were struck most by the page of fashions from "Madmoiselle" magazine and the fourpage color spread of 1956 automobiles from "Life."

But two engineering students reading a copy in the lobby of the Hotel Metropole got their biggest kick out of a centerspread showing a triple exposure of the start, halfway mark and finish of a 60-yard dash. They explained they were runners themselves.

MOST OF THE lucky first-day purchasers learned "Amerika" was going on sale from an announcement over Radio Moscow.

Daniel Kovalov, Moscow distribution chief for Soyuzpechat, the state monopoly, said another 10,000 to 15,000 copies of the magazine would be put on sale Tuesday.

A total of 52,000 copies of the magazine are to be sold in the Soviet Union as part of a reciprocal deal with the Russians who began selling their counterpart "USSR," in the U. S. over the weekend.

lew Fencing Club Organization lanned for Novice 'Touche'ers

by Barbara Miller
ily Universe Feature Editor

CRIES OF "touche" and "on guard" will soon be heard, echoing up on the Brigham Young University campus.

Plans for beginning a fencing club are now in the last stages according to Mills Crenshaw, Napa, Calif.

This organization will be open to both men and women students who have had a yen to hold a foil in their hand and try the ancient sport. There is nothing easy about fencing although many movie stars make it appear a simple thing to undertake.

FENCING isn't a game to be taken up by house plants who never see the outside of their homes. Even football players used to rugged outdoor activity have been left puffing after a short five minutes with experienced fencing enthusiast.

This sport requires certain skills possessed by almost every person. But these skills are not up to par as a rule.

Fencing will improve speed, coordination, develop reflexes and work up timing. Balance and muscular strength will also be aided.

THESE ARE attributes that lie dormant in most students who spend their busiest time walking from the McKay Building to the Cougareat between classes. But fencing will bring out and develop these essential skills that would be a help in any other port from skiing to basketball.

Any "red-blooded" man on campus would like to develop these talents, but to most women strength and such things aren't vital.

For women fencing develops a sense of grace that is found in high-fashion models and dancers. In fact, some expensive modeling schools have added fencing to their curriculum as a way to develop the necessary poise and carriage.

HANDICAPS do not restrict anyone sincerely interested in learning to fence and even a wheelchair can be used to advantage in holding off an opponent.

As a campus organization the fencing club is scheduled to form a team from within its ranks. These experienced members hope to have matches with fencers from the University of Utah.

Opening meeting of the new organization is scheduled for Wednesday from 6:30 to 7:30 p. m. in 135 McKay Building. This beginning venture is open to any men or women students who are interested in fencing, whether or not they have had any experience.

STUDENTS who have fenced will be incorporated into a team and training staff for those members who have not fenced before. A competent staff, one qualified instructor and three assistants will be on hand to teach.

Cats Face Star Backs In Game Against Utags

by Jerry Cunningham

AFTER THEIR first football win, Brigham Young University will clash with Utah State's Aggies in Logan Saturday afternoon.

The Cougars will be facing one of their toughest foes of the year, according to Head Coach Harold Kopp.

The Aggies boast three wins with a single loss in conference play. BYU is 0-2-1 for the year.

Last year the Aggies trounced the Cougars 47-21.

INDICATIONS are that the Cougars will face one of the most versatile backfields in the region. Quarterback Bob Winters and halfbacks Jack Hill Ezra Smith and John Whatcott are potential all-conference men.

In fact, Hill and Winters, among the nation's offensive leaders, are vying for all-American honors.

Hill is currently leading the nation in rushing, and his kicking and passing make him a triple-threat.

ACCORDING TO last week's national tabulations, Winters was the fourth leading passer in the country.

Before Hill hangs up his cleats he may be the most versatile Aggie back of all time.

Playing in only eight of 10 conference games last year, Jack "Rabbit" Hill racked up seven and one-half yards per carry to rank second nationally. The 5-10, 180-pound halfback had the highest punt-return average in the country, 41.6 per try.

HILL'S 23-yard kick-off return average was tops in the United States.

Aggie foes, concentrating on stopping Hill, have given Whatcott and Smith a chance to display their prowess.

Smith, a 9.8 100-yard dash man, has starred in the AC's last two games against Montana and Colorado A & M.

Winters-to-Whatcott pass combination has clicked so successfully that Whatcott is the leading pass receiver in the conference.

THE AGGIES HAVE a big, strong line, too. Dick Kimball, Joe Librizzi, Jack Harvath, Tom Ramage, Bob Wilson, Larry Sorenson and Ed Serpas combine to give USAC a forward wall average over 200 pounds.

The Cougars will have to adapt their defense to a versatile Aggie offensive which will be no easy task, according to Coach Kopp.

Reports from Logan indicate that Aggie Coach Ev Faunce will use his double platoon, which was the big factor in the AC'S massacre of Colorado A & M.

Cross-Country Intramural Run ComingNov. 17

THE ANNUAL cross country run will be conducted during halftime of the BYU-Wyoming football game Nov. 17, according to Bill Hafen, director of the Men's Intramural program.

The run is 2.6 miles in length. Anyone wishing to may enter, including varsity track men.

The winner will be awarded the H. G. Merrill trophy, emblematic of cross country supremacy. Any varsity track man winning will be awarded a track letter.

AS INCENTIVE for frosh and other non-varsity men, the winner will be given a track numeral sweater should they win. Regardless of the placing of upperclassmen, the first freshman to cross the finish line will be given a frosh track numeral sweater.

SHERALD James is the record holder with a time of 11:53.2 for the course. James also won the race every year during his four years at BYU.

Meanwhile intramural activities continue at full speed with 50 flag football teams scrambling for honors.

Hafen announced that table tennis- enthusiasts have until Oct. 30 to enter the singles tourney.

Badminton mixed doubles begin Nov. 1 with entries closing Oct. 30.

Any student interested in either entering a team in Intramural competition, or competing individually is urged to contact the Intramural Office, room 217, Smith Fieldhouse, according to Hafen.
